HEADLEY & EBERLY'S BUILDING,

250 and 252 South High Street.

We offer hereafter for the space we occupy this morning, in a description of the splendid new building erected by Messrs. HEADLEY & EBERLY, for the accommodation of their continually-increasing trade, not only because the success of our business firms is a matter of public interest, but the building itself is an ornament to the city, and the splendid store on the first floor a convenience and benefit to the community. As will be seen by the very beautiful engraving at the head of this article, the building is, four stories in height, 100 feet deep by 47 feet front, built of brick, in the most substantial manner. As we have said, the first floor is designed and fitted up expressly as a salesroom, to be occupied by the new firm of HEADLEY, EBERLY & RICHARDS, who have formed a co-partnership for carrying on the Dry Goods business. This store has a front on the street, the entire width of the building, running back 100 feet, giving an area of over 5,000 square feet. The floor is handsomely fitted up, with four rows of counters and shelving, so arranged that an excellent light is obtained in every part of the room. There are two entrances on High street, so wide that no possible crowd of custom can ever enter or leave the store.

The business arrangements, too, are admirable; each description of goods has a department allotted to it, with gentlemen salesmen, whose duty it is to attend to one particular branch. At the back of the store, in an elevated shed, intended for the cashier, who is so situated that he has an unobstructed view of all the counters, and can tell at a glance what is going on. To this office is attached the supervision of the financial transactions, and he is responsible to the firm for everything sold. Over the store proper, is a large room, devoted to keeping surplus stock, and to unpacking and marking goods, previous to their being placed on the shelves below. This room has an area of over 1,500 square feet. Under the store is a large and well-lighted cellar, to be used as a storeroom. By the addition of these two apartments, all confusion is avoided in the salesroom, on the receipt of new goods, by taking stock, or packing orders for the trade.

These rooms are all highly finished, the decorations are in the best possible taste, and the painting and gilding of the woodwork is of the most beautiful quality. The store is entirely composed of French plate glass, nearly half an inch in thickness—the door and window columns of stone, light and graceful, and highly finished.

The upper stories are divided into spacious offices, access to which is obtained by a circular winding staircase. These rooms are all well lighted, and to each one is added a side room, making them the most convenient and pleasant offices in the city. The entire building is finished in good style, and lighted with gas throughout.

The building, which we have thus attempted briefly to describe, was commenced on the 1st day of April last, and although completed in so remarkably short time, is built in the most durable and substantial manner. The architecture and internal arrangements reflect the highest credit upon Mr. HEADLEY, who drafted the design, and upon Mr. R. R. Koons, the architect, who successfully carried out his ideas.

The brickwork of this building was done by SYDNEY & KASCHER, which, by the excellent job they have made, has added largely to their reputation. The carpenter work was done by DEAL, EGAN & BENNETT, who have added to their reputation by the very excellent job they have turned out; while the painting and glazing by J. Koons cannot be excelled.

This firm opened their Western Dry Goods Palace to the public on Wednesday evening last, and from that time forward we predict that they will have all they can do to wait on their customers. The business is conducted on an entirely new system. Cash on Delivery is to be the rule, which has been adopted in order to afford goods being sold at the lowest possible figure—saving to the purchaser the usual advance of 15 or 20 per cent. charged for collections elsewhere.

Mr. Wm. RICHARDS, the new partner in the firm, has control of the purchase and arrangement of the stock, and his reputation is a guarantee that everything in the store will be of the best quality and newest designs.

Mr. James ZIEGLER will preside at the Cashier's desk, and our well known friend, PHILIP CORLETT, will be found there as salesman, while Mr. HEADLEY has control of the financial department, which is sufficient assurance that the establishment will always be conducted on a solid basis.
